Sampson Air Force Base By MAJ. GEN. BICHARD C. LINDSAY, Commander, USAF

THE primary mission of the 3650th Military Training Wing at Sampson Air Force Base, N. Y., is the initial training of U. S. Air Force personnel. Sampson receives each newly recruited airman, who

In essence, the mission of Sampson Air Force Base is one of indoctrination and conversion. Starting out with thousands of individuals each month who have for of individuals each month who have for the most part had no military experience whatsoever, we familiarize them with every aspect of life and training in the Air Force as fully as time allows, then send them on to the spot in the military framework where they will be of the greatest use to the service of their country, and where we hope they will at the same time be content in their personal adjustment to military life.

But, we are very conscious of the fact that most of these thousands are boys seeking to become young men, many of whom have never been far from home and mother before. Every effort is therefore made to develop and maintain the integrity and the dignity of the individual. Subsidized Navy Students Reject Career In Uniform

For the second straight year, the Navy's subsidized education program for young officers—the Holloway Plan—has fallen far below its major objective.

Although final figures will not be in for four more months, THE JOURNAL has learned that about five out of every six officers making an election so far have indicated that they do not desire Regular Navy commissions.

Navy commissions.

The second group of Holloway Plan graduates originally numbered 1,400, but at present only 1,375 remain on active duty. Of this number, 608 (or approximately 44 per cent) have said they do not desire Regular status; only 113 (or approximately eight per cent) have indicated a desire to transfer into the Navy.

The latter group, including others (of the remaining 654) who may desire Regular commissions, will be considered for integration by a board which will be convened next April. All of the group must indicate prior to 1 April of next year whether or not they desire Regular commissions.

Pentagon manpower plans are being continued on the hidden hope that a substantial number of troops can be brought home from the Far East by the end of the next fiscal year.

Barring a last minute change in Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's expressed attitude or the now unlikely interference by the White House, the Pentagon in submitting its fiscal '55 budget will include an unpublicized gamble that conditions in Korea will permit withdrawal of at least two divisions—possibly as many as four—during the year beginning next 1 July.

—possibly as many as four—during the year beginning next 1 July.

If that bet works out, military authorities concede the 10 per cent manpower slash confronting the Army, Navy and Marine Corps—actually the cut is considerably more than that on the basis of current strength—makes sense.

Otherwise, military strategists believe it will be impossible to (1) maintain combat effectiveness; (2) meet world-wide commitments; and (3) train a proportionately heavy load of recruits. Something will have to give, they insist. No responsible Defense Department official has yet said so publicly, nor will any official soon state that the forthcoming manpower economies can be undertaken because a reduced Far East requirement is a prospect.

Such a statement at this time obviously would be ill-timed. First, it would add to the serious problem confronting General John E. Hull, Far East Commander, and his top lieutenant, General Maxwell D. Taylor, Eighth Army Commander, in maintaining the combat readiness of the U.N. forces. Second, any officially stated hints of a diminution of U. S. strength in the Far East would handicap greatly the diplomatic negotiations now underway.

For the present, of course, and this could mean at least until the end of fiscal '54 next 30 June, the combat capability of the Eighth Army will not be allowed to diminish. This assures that General Taylor's troops will have advantage.

Text of Womble Report on Career Attractiveness

The following is the complete text of the Womble Committee—officially the Ad Hoc Committee on the Future of Military Service as a Career that will Attract and Retain Capable Career Personnel.

This document was presented to the Armed Forces Policy Council, headed by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, prior to its release to the public. The report was first submitted in memorandum form to Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah on 30 Oct., but was held up until it could be presented to the top civilian and military leaders of the Defense Department.

The statement of the Womble Committee:

The statement of the Womble Committee:

1. BACKGROUND

1. BACKGROUND

On 20 February 1953 the Joint Chiefs of Staff forwarded a memorandum to the Secretary of Defense stating that they had become increasingly concerned about the growing lack of confidence among Armed Forces personnel in military service as a worthwhile and respected career. They were particularly concerned over implications on this situation as they would affect the future proficiency of the military services.

On 30 April 1953 this same concern was expressed by the President in his message to the Congress (Reorganization Plan No. 6 of 1953). The President affirmed he had directed the Secretary of Defense to study the problem.

Responsive to these requirements, Rear Adm. J. P. Womble, jr, USN, Maj. Gen. R. N. Young, USA, Rear Adm. M. E. Arnold, USN, Maj. Gen. M. J. Lee, USAF, and Brig. Gen. N. H. Nelson, USMC, were appointed as a committee to study the problem and recommend corrective action, as required. An interim report of progress was submitted on 16 July 1953 and work continued. This constitutes the final report of the committee.

2. DELINEATION OF THE PROBLEM

2. DELINEATION OF THE PROBLEM
Publicity which attended work of the committee generated hundreds of letters from active and retired military personnel as well as from the general public. The committee examined these letters, together with voluminous evidence procured from the military departments, and concluded that military service as a career that will attract and hold capable and ambitious personnel had deteriorated alarmingly in comparison with other fields of skilled endeavor.

It must be clearly established that this reorated alarmingly in comparison with other fields of skilled endeavor.

It must be clearly established that this report deals with professional career officers (including long-term reserve officers) and noncommissioned officers of the regular forces. This is the "hard core" which ultimately determines the military virtue of our Armed Forces. So long as the unstable international political situation requires some form of military service from virtually every eligible young man in this country, there will be no dearth of numbers, who for personal advantage, temporarily desire to affiliate themselves with this hard core. Such persons were excluded from this study.

The problem was thus resolved to be: WHY HAS MILITARY SERVICE LOST MUCH OF ITS ATTRACTIVENESS AS A LIFETIME CAREER FOR INHERENTLY CAPABLE PERSONNEL AND WHAT CORRECTIVE MEASURES ARE NECESSARY?

3. DISCUSSION OF RESPONSI-BLE FACTORS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

a. WORLD COMMITMENTS AND THE NATIONAL ATTITUDE

(1) WORLD COMMITMENTS HAVE BURDENED PERSONNEL WITH INSTABILITY AND ABNORMAL HARDSHIP.

DENED PERSONNEL WITH INSTABILITY AND ABNORMAL HARDSHIP.

The attainment of a satisfactory defense posture against the unrelenting advance of communism has necessitated the continued maintenance of our Armed Forces at an unprecedented peacetime size.

It has been necessary to deploy a major portion of these forces throughout many areas of the world varying widely in climatic and general living conditions. The continuing necessity to provide personnel support for these oversea forces, and to insure maintenance of their combat effectiveness by means of rotation, has burdened career personnel with instability and abnormal hardship. The continuing practice of stationing large forces in oversea areas without family living accommodations has brought about increasingly frequent periods of lengthy family separations. These disruptions of family life have appreciably increased living costs, multiplied personal problems, strained marital relations, and, in many instances, destroyed families. There are not sufficient numbers of able men who will willingly accept a career which prohibits or destroys normal family life.

(2) PUBLIC RESPECT FOR CONSTITUTED AUTHORITY HAS DECLINED.

There is ample evidence of a lack of understanding on the part of the people concerning the necessity for implementing our present national military policy. It appears that a portion of this unfavorable attitude stems from the recent conduct of hostilities in Korea. Certainly these hostilities were conducted without the degree of public sup port afforded to two preceding world-wide conflicts. Continued operation of Selective Service is equally distasteful. Until the public understand and accept a public responsibility of military service, the situa-tion is not likely to improve. There exists an unwholesome amount of irresponsible criticism of the implementation of our national military policies. The more vociferous of critics aim their slanderous attacks at our military leaders whom they refer to derogatorily, collectively and repeatedly as "the brass." More recently "the brass" has been extended to connote all career military officers as a class.

The committee cautions that the continued degradation of career military officers, as a class, can eventually do irreparable damage to our ability to attract and retain capable personnel. Able and conscientious men will not indefinitely continue in a profession dis-honored by public criticism.

b. MILITARY AUTHORITY AND LEADERSHIP HAS DECLINED

(The following subjects affect the respective services in varying degrees.

(1) THERE HAS BEEN A DILUTION OF ILITARY AUTHORITY AND LEADER-

The tremendous increase in inexperienced The tremendous increase in inexperienced personnel within our Armed Forces subsequent to the outbreak of hostilities in Korea resulted in a dilution of career experienced authority and leadership. This dilution has been further accentuated by losses of experienced personnel who no longer find military service an attractive and satisfying career. Unless this trend can be reversed, the inevitable result must be mediocrity in the conduct ble result must be mediocrity in the conduct of military affairs.

(2) THE DILUTION OF AUTHORITY AND LEADERSHIP LED TO REDUCED DISTINCTION BETWEEN RANKS.

DISTINCTION BETWEEN RANKS.

The dilution of experienced personnel necessitated increasingly centralized authority and control. Commissioned and noncommissioned command authority and consequently prestige were diminished accordingly. The trend has been toward over-supervision. Personnel are no longer inclined to accept responsibilities commensurate with their rank primarily because they lack authority to adequately and fully discharge these responsibilities.

sibilities.

Service leaders must accept full responsibility for yielding to popular and political pressure to adopt policies which served to further diminish the distinction between ranks. Certain post-war "reforms," designed primarily to force officers and enlisted men into a common social pattern, served only to reduce pride in service, inhibit effective discipline, reduce incentive and ultimately encourage personnel to leave the service.

(3) DISCIPLINE REQUIRES EMPHASIS IF MILITARY AUTHORITY IS TO BE RE-ESTABLISHED.

The committee unanimously concludes that professional standards have been permitted to deteriorate through lack of effective disciplinary control. The adoption of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, with its unwieldly legal procedure, has made the effective administration of military discipline within the Armed Forces more difficult. An officer's word is no longer recognized as his bond. Forthright determination to correct these conditions is essential if the integrity of military leaders is to be reestablished in the opinion of the public, thus enhancing the profession of arms. The committee unanimously concludes that

(4) ESPRIT HAS BEEN INHIBITED TO THE DETRIMENT OF EFFECTIVE LEAD-ERSHIP.

The continuous influx and egress of per sonnel in the Armed Forces is conducive to adoption of personnel policies which deal with individuals on a mass-production basis. Such procedures may produce dollar economy, but assuredly destroy unit and individual identity and with it, esprit. Collective pride in organization and mission can come about only when it is possible for all individuals to permanently identify themselves with a particular mission and military organization. Frequent reassignment and excessive interchange of command inhibit this identifiization. Frequent reassignment and excessive interchange of command inhibit this identification. Too frequently, an attempt has been made to restore the damage thus done by the hasty adoption of individual moralestimulating panaceas. More fundamental cor-

DR. HANNAH'S COMMENT

Dr. John A. Hannah, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel, made the following comment in making public the attached report:

"The report of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Future of Military Service as a Career that will attract and Retain Ca-pable Career Personnel (The Womble Committee) was presented to the Armed Forces Policy Council at its meeting on "The report was received by the Council and released for publication, with thunderstanding that this release does not imply approval or acceptance of the report in every respect.

"The report will be carefully reviewed by Military Services, the Department of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

(5) TECHNOCRACY HAS BEEN OVER-EMPHASIZED TO THE DETRIMENT OF COMMAND ABILITY.

The services must overcome the dilution of military authority and leadership by adjusting promotion criteria. A premium must be placed on command and leadership abilities. placed on command and leadership abilities. Accompanying an increase in technocracy within the services, there has been an everincreasing demand for technical abilities. As a result, many now achieve promotion to responsible positions never placing themselves in a situation where their leadership and command abilities are tested. It must be clearly established that military command and technical astuteness are two separate and distinct fields of endeavor. Both are essential, but career personnel must be reassured that leadership ability will be recognized in promotion procedures.

(6) A REDUCTION OF PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS MAKES MILITARY SERVICE LESS ATTRACTIVE.

The committee counsels that a further lowering of professional standards will not serve to lend attractiveness to a military career. On the contrary, resulting mediocrity will engender further dissatisfaction thus encouraging others to leave the service. Inadequate national preparedness will assuredly result. The military departments must adopt policies to restore the prestige and authority of officers and noncommissioned officers by increasing their authority and responsibility. demoting the incompetents, eliminating over-supervision and placing a premium on lead-ership and command abilities.

Those who betray their trust, are incom-petent, or bring discredit on military service must be ruthlessly eliminated.

c. INCREASED COMPETITION WITH INDUSTRY FOR GOOD MEN

(1) TAKE-HOME PAY HAS NOT KEPT PACE WITH THE COST OF LIVING.

It is a matter of major concern that career military personnel can no longer cope with the increased costs of living. Relief is essen-tial. Civilian employment is at an all time high and pay is lucrative, particularly for the skills taught within the service.

Increases in service pay have neither ap-proximated the increase in the cost of living nor increases afforded organized labor or even increases afforded civilian public serv-ants. At the same time, there has been an alarming decrease in compensatory benefits. The result of these two trends has been to place military personnel in the incompatible position of being unable to live even mod-estly and adequately provide for their fam-

The committee concludes that unless career The committee concludes that unless career service personnel are assured of sufficient take-home pay and compensatory benefits, to enable them to maintain a satisfactory standard of living and properly provide for their families, they will neither adopt nor continue in the Armed Forces as a career, regardless of the strength of any other motives.

The committee recognizes the enormity of the problem facing the current administration in attempting to stem the rise of public debt and balance the national budget. Despite these obstacles, the committee urges that the present administration provide some relief by increasing service pay. The committee is by increasing service pay. The committee is convinced such action would do much to stem the present tendency to leave military service for the more lucrative pay in private

(2) TRADITIONAL COMPENSATORY BENEFITS HAVE BEEN EMASCULATED,

It is impossible to assess in terms of dol-lars the morale value of compensatory benefits. The committee forthrightly urges the abandonment of the present policy of reduc-ing compensatory benefits traditionally utilized by the services to supplement take-home pay. Pressure groups of business interests have emasculated many of these benefits. They have been the continuous targets of Congressional economy attacks. They have been exploited by the services themselves to provide nonappropriated funds for mortle and welfare activities. First things must come first. These benefits must be restored in full and complete effectiveness as an adjunct service pay. This is a cheap budgetary price to pay and an absolute minimum essential if sufficient career personnel are to be retained within the services.

(3) RETIREMENT MUST BE MADE MORE ATTRACTIVE.

The past twenty years have seen a markable advancement in the retiren plans of industry. The advantage previous enjoyed by the military in this area rapidly disappeared. Retired personnel be more adequately recompensed for a time devoted to the preservation of our of life. The preservation of our of life. time devoted to the preservation of our of life. The present economic situation many of our retired service personnel refidiscredit on our government. The commit concludes retired personnel must particip in any pay readjustments afforded the many services.

WHAT'S WRONG

This is the summary chart which was used for the Womble Report briefing presented on 1 Dec. to the Armed Forces Policy Council, presided over by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson. The chart tells (1) What's Wrong; (2) How to Correct; and (3) What Should Be Done—By Whom. Omitted by the Pentagon was another category: "Who gon was another category: "Who Did It."

(4) INSUFFICIENT PROVISION FOR FAMILIES.

In FAMILIES.

The committee is convinced that, to date, sufficient effort has not been expended to secure adequate provision for families. Inadequate housing and exorbitant rents can and must be corrected. Additional provision must be made for the education of children. Additional means must be provided whereby career military personnel may more adequately provide for their families in the even of their death or disablement. All of these actions are essential if the services are to compete with civilian industry for capable personnel.

(5) INDUCEMENTS TO LEAVE THE

Attractiveness of a service career must ou Attractiveness of a service career must our weigh inducements to leave the service. We must acknowledge the great savings involved in continuous service by providing most of the benefits afforded to personnel on separation from the service. There appears to be the benefits afforded to personnel on separa-tion from the service. There appears to be little justification for denying to the veteral who remains in the service the advantages accorded the veteran who voluntarily sepa-rates himself from the service. At present, personnel must forego thousands of dollars in benefits to remain in service.

(6) THE ARMED SERVICES MUST BE ABLE TO COMPETE WITH INDUSTRY.

The advent of modern weapons in ou Armed Forces has brought about an increase ing technocracy accompanied by an ownehming demand for skilled technicians all trades. Because of our inability to be career personnel in highly technical position. the Armed Forces are forced to give co training to thousands of personnel who mediately leave the service for the m lucrative awards available in industry. One the greatest savings to be made in our tional defense efforts lies in enhancing ability of the Armed Forces to compete industry to retain highly skilled tecl personnel. The committee therefore con that no additional cost is involved in tional recompense for career personnel since over a period of time, such costs are mor than offset by decreased costs of training recruitment and separation.

d. POSITIVE DANGER EXISTS THAT BUDGETARY CONSIDERATIONS TRANSCEND COMBAT EFFECTIVENESS

(1) LARGE FORCES AT LOW COSTS ARE NOT ENOUGH.

The enormous cost inherent in the maintenance of defense forces of an adequate size has resulted in an alarming drain on our national treasure. The committee therefore recognizes that foremost consideration must be given to securing the maximum defense per dollar cost.

However, the committee admonishes that

Brig. Gen. Westmoreland G-1 Deputy for Manpower

Brig. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, 39, a 1936 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, reported to the Pentagon this week to assume duties as Deputy Assist-ant Chief of Staff, G-1 for Manpower Control.

He replaces Brig, Gen. Herbert P.
Powell, who moved up to be the No. 2 man in G-1 under Maj. Gen. Robert N.
Young, when Maj. Gen. Boniface Campbell was named to command the Counter Intelligence Corps Center at Camp

Holabird, Md.
General Westmoreland served most recently as commanding general of the 187th Regimental Combat Team in the Far East.

This means that all three G-1 general officers are veterans of service in Korea.

General Young commanded the 2d Infantry Division during the successful assault on Heartbreak Ridge; General Powell commanded the 17th Infantry Regiment—the only U. S. organization to reach the Yalu.

First Patton Stamp To Pvt.

The first block of stamps 10 FVt.

The first block of stamps honoring the late General George S. Patton, jr., and the Armored Forces were sold to an Army private during special Armistice Day ceremonies at Ft. Knox, Ky.

With Assistant Postmaster General Almert I. Pedarton acting as "postal clark."

bert J. Robertson acting as "postal clerk," the first purchase was made by Pvt. Richard A. Dawson. When the first-day sale was over, nearly a quarter of a million Patton stamps and 350 thousand first-day covers had been sold.

Army Promotions Due

Preparations were being made at the Pentagon late this week to announce about 600 temporary promotions for Army officers to captain, major and lieutenant colonel.

tenant colonel.

It is expected that this will include about 200 promotions to the three ranks. The Army has announced two previous increments of promotions to captain, with the last cutoff date 4 Aug. 1950. Some of the advancements in the forthcoming group to captain are expected to have that cutoff date also.

The first promotions to major and lieutenant colonel originally were scheduled for late November, but were delayed slightly. As a result, the December promotions to the two ranks are expected to be somewhat higher than originally fore-

Col. Fred H. Mowrey, MC, has been assigned to the Surgeon General's Office as Assistant Chief of Medical Consultant. Previously, he was stationed at Percy Jones AH. Battle Creek, Mich., where he was chief of the Medical Service.

"NOTED"

Col. Louis C. Friedersdorff, newlyassigned to Fourth Army Headquar-ters at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., has disclosed an invaluable tactic he employed during his 19 months' service as senior member of the U.N. Com-mand Committee for the Repatria-tion of Prisoners of War in Korea.

When the exchange of prisoners began, he relates, the Communists used the meetings for propaganda tirades, with long speeches on atrocities and germ warfare.

"We listened patiently — then I would end the meetings with a single 'Noted.' It seemed to irritate them very much," the colonel said.

WWII Col. Takes Office As Deputy Asst. Sec'y

A WWII Army colonel, Frank H. Hig-gins, vice president and general manager of the products division of Alexander Smith, Inc., Yonkers, N. Y., this week be-came Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Army (Materiel) under Assistant Army

Secretary John Slezak.

During the war Mr. Higgins served as assistant to the Chief of Ordnance in the assistant to the Chief of Ordnance in the War Department, Washington, D. Army To Test Assignment Plan For Enlisted Reserves

The Army will test during the first six months of 1954 a mobilization assignment months of 1954 a mobilization assignment plan under which enlisted personnel re-leased from active duty during that period, with a remaining Reserve obliga-tion under existing law, will be earmarked for specific assignment in the event of mobilization.

One Military District in each Army area will be selected to conduct the test

These Reservists will be given mobilize tion assignments to active Army units or installations and to National Guard and Army Reserve units located near their homes.

Men selected for mobilization assignment to active Army units will be among those who have at least six years of service remaining to be satisfied and who have had no prior combat service. These mobilization assignment will be for one year, during which assignees are liable for immediate active duty in the event of mobilization.

Soldiers holding mobilization assignments to active Army units for one year will be credited with a maximum of one year's service toward qualifying for transfer to the Standby Reserve. However, men in this category can be released from mobilization assignment upon enlisting in a National Guard unit or by requesting assignment to an Army Reserve unit for the purpose of full and active participation. active participation.

Obligated Reservists in excess of active Army requirements, and those who have had prior National Guard or Army Reserve service, will generally be assigned by military occupational specialty as mobilization assignees to National Guard or Army Reserve units, respectively. The same procedure will be followed in the case of obligated Reservists with prior combat service.

They will be notified of their assignments by the appropriate unit command er in their local areas within 30 days after transfer to the Army Reserve. Each such assignment will be for four years, except in cases where the individual enlists in the National Guard or volunteers for assignment to an active Army Reserve

Assignments made during the test period will remain in effect until the Department of the Army announces a general policy on the subject, the Pentagon

In 1869, novelist Jules Verne created a scientific fantasy about the "Nautilus", a fictional submarine capable of traveling "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea". Today, a real "Nautilus" is under construction by General Dynamics. When launched in 1954, the "Nautilus" will be able to cruise indefinitely - propelled by atomic power. Recently at our Electric Boat Division yards, the Secretary of the Navy laid the keel plate of the "Sea Wolf", a nuclear powered submarine of entirely different design!

Since 1880, divisions of General Dynamics have been surpassing yesterday's fiction with today's fact... building electric motors of advanced design... building supersonic aircraft... building atomic powered submarines ... successfully adapting new forms of power to military and industrial uses.

The citation of the award to Major Loring follows:

"Major Charles J. Loring, jr. 130008A, United States Air Force, distinguished himself by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and bevond the call of duty near Sniper Ridge, North Korea, on 22 November 1952. While leading a flight of four F-80 type aircraft on a close support mission, Major Loring was briefed by a controller to dive-bomb enemy gun positions which were harassing friendly ground troops. After verifying the location of the target, Major Loring rolled into his dive-bomb run. Throughout the run, extremely accurate ground fire was directed on his aircraft. Disregarding the accuracy and intensity of the ground fire Major Loring aggressively continued to press the attack until his aircraft was hit. At approximately 4,000 feet, he deliberately altered his ing aggressively continued to press the attack until his aircraft was hit. At approximately 4,000 feet, he deliberately altered his course and aimed his diving aircraft at active gun emplacements concentrated on a ridge northwest of the briefed target. With conspicuous gallantry and daring, Major Loring turned his aircraft 45 degrees to the left, pulled up in a deliberate, controlled maneuver, and elected to sacrifice his life by diving his aircraft directly into the midst of the enemy emplacements. His selfess and heroic action completely destroyed the enemy gun emplacement and eliminated a dangerous threat to United Nations ground forces. Major Loring's noble spirit, superlative courage and conspicuous self-sacrifice in inflicting maximum damage on the enemy exemplified valor of the highest degree and his actions were in keeping with the finest traditions of the United States Air Force."

Train ROTC Grads at AMC

Twenty-five newly assigned Air Force second lieutenants have begun an intensive 30-day readjustment training course conducted by the procurement division of Headquarters, Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

All are recent ROTC graduates.

The course is designed to familiarize the officers with Air Force contract ter-mination procedures, claims settlements and property disposal operations. After completing the course the lieutenants will be assigned throughout the country at AMC depots and contractors' plant residencies.

Fourteen of the officers have been admitted to the bars of various states and four others are law school graduates, giv-ing the majority of the class a legal back-ground in dealing with Air Force contracting proceedings.

During the next two months, 50 more ROTC second lieutenants will receive the same training.

The present class of trainees represent 24 universities and colleges and 18 home

This will be the first visit of modern jet Air Force aircraft to the Latin American Republics and a further demonstration of continuing military cooperation between the United States and the Latin American Republics, said Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott.

Aircraft participating in the tour include North American F-96F Sabrejets, Republic F-84G Thunderjets, Lockheed F-80 Shooting Stars and T-33 Jet Trainers, plus support aircraft.

Secretary Talbott, emphasizing the purpose of the tour, said:

This common interest in the development of an adequate defense he recalled, stems from the mutual obligations of the Rio Treaty as well as from Resolution III of the 1951 Meeting of Foreign Minis-ters under which the American Repub-lics have agreed that hemisphere defense is the collective responsibility of all American States. Secretary Talbott pointed out that the

In addition to the programs of grant military assistance, nineteen American Republics are also eligible to purchase equipment, materials, and services from the United States under the Reimbursable Military Assistance provisions of the Mutual Defense Assistance Act. Six-teen of the nineteen countries have made purchases in the amount of approximate-

"We must have represented in our professional officer cadre a cross-section of the Nation's life, a fair share of the best the Nation produces in character, in intellect, and in culture."-GENERAL MATTHEW B. RIDGWAY, USA.

"Oblivious To Danger." In formulating budget estimates for fiscal 1955, with a weather eye on economy, the Department of Defense is fortunate in that it has a recent example of the danger of cutting the cloth too close.

In his address Wednesday before the American Ordnance Association, Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, referred to the period, a few years ago, when "this nation faced what we now recognize as a period of imposed reckless military economy and cutbacks preceding the Korean War." "The nation," he said, "seemed almost oblivious to danger."

We were caught, then, with stripped down combat divisions, and supply services so short that they could not function efficiently. The fact is, that in spite of heroic conduct by our skimpy forces, the United States troops were driven into humiliating retreat and almost forced from the peninsula until our "crash" build-up at home gave them the support they had to have.

That sad situation need not be repeated, particularly if heed is paid to Admiral Radford's timely warning. We are again in the same position we were in 1950, when economy was the paramount consideration. But we must not repeat the errors of 1950. In those days the nation was lulled by the fiction that slashes in funds represented only cuts in "fat." "Muscle," it was said, would remain. But muscle did not remain-all that remained was the symbol of strength. We said we had 10 Divisions, but they were strippeddown divisions without internal strength and without the backing of sufficient supply forces.

Today we are flirting with the same idea. Reductions in manpower can mean big reductions in expenditures. Secretary of Defense Wilson has even permitted himself to be backed into the position where he said that the proposed cut of 10 per cent was decided on because it was a "nice round figure." Surely, he can not mean that "nice round figure" was picked solely for reasons of economy. As Admiral Radford said, we must not again be "oblivious to danger."

Keeping past experience in mind, we must beware of the current trend to replace symbols of power for the real means of power. It is easy to say that we have so many divisions, so many air wings, or so many combatant ships. But these units must have the flesh that makes them function. As the war in Korea showed, we must have solid fighting strength—not just symbols.

"Relief is Essential." The nation-wide publicity on the report of the Womble Committee is the first broad step toward the solution of the problem of attracting and holding the high type of personnel needed to keep the Armed Forces strong and efficient.

Through the medium of the Womble Report, the public will learn what has happened to the Services over the past few years. They will know, for example, that military personnel are subARMY · NAVY · AIR FORCE

Objects to "G.I."

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The common use of the slang, vulgarism "GI" when referring to our soldiers, is not only a direct affront to the dignity of the men and women of the military institution of our country but is more action of our country but is more ac-curately a direct reflection of the low esteem in which a certain vocal and insidious segment of our citizenry hold our front line defenders.

Parents, of all people, should be concerned about the true implication and meaning of this term GI. A GI in its true derivations means the Government Issue. The manufactured product of our industrial complex, purchased by the Govern-ment, stored in a stock bin of a military warehouse and issued over the counter upon requisition.

A soldier on the other hand is a MAN not a thing. He is the product of a home, a school system and a church. He is a further refinement of endless hours, days, months and even years of training in the military arts and sciences. He is the citizen who mans the far flung bat-tlefronts of the world holding back with his own body the tide of op-pression and brutality while the homes, schools and churches of his community celebrate a Merry Christmas and try to build a society which be safe from the covert roachments of the very forces he Sooner than you realize the little boy for whom we are buying toys this Christmas will be asked to take his rightful place as a soldier. He must then confront the enemy face to face. As a cittizen of a free country he rightfully resents any treatment that would relegate him to the level of a common item of Govern-ment Issue. I know that we fathers and mothers will not tolerate him being treated as Government Issue socks, Government Issue lubricant or Government Issue underwear.

If we don't want our sons treated like Government Issue, in God's name don't allow thoughtless persons to write and speak of them in

Attracting Pilots

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I have seen and read a great deal lately about the shortage of candidates for pilot training for the Air Force and the Navy. A great many solutions have been put forth—more pay, better living conditions, uniform allowances, etc., but it seems to me that the number one consideration has been rarely mentioned. That is the kids' enthusiasm for flying.

No amount of money, within rea son, will get kids to go in for flight training unless they have the funda-mental urge to fly. Why have we been lax in this field? The fact is that we have not been putting forth any real effort to interest the new generation in flying. There was a time, when JN4's were flying from every cow pasture, when kids were air-minded, but today the young high school graduate is just not inter-

The fact is no one is interested in showing the youngsters what goes on in the air. If there was an organon in the air. If there was an organized effort to make the younger generation air minded we would have more candidates. I would suggest that every high school have a course in aviation. Once a boy has seen an airplane at close range, and perhaps flown in one, he is a genuine candidate for flight training.

SecDef Wilson Uncertain About Big Carrier; Says JCS Will Advise On All Major Weapons

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said this week he doesn't know if the Navy will be allowed to ask Congress for funds in the 1955 Defense budget for a fourth Forrestal-class carrier.

At the same time, he noted that the Joint Chiefs of Staff henceforth will be asked to make recommendations on all that the carrier.

The paper also states that the Joint Chiefs will designate one of their members as their executive agent for "the development of special tactics, techniques

The Defense Secretary's own position in the matter of weapon approval is not clear. Mr. Wilson indicated this week that if he was not convinced of a need for the carrier he would reject it regardless of the position of the JCS.

This recalls former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson's views on the subject. Mr. Johnson was questioned on the subject during the 1949 House investigasubject during the 1939 House investiga-tion. He said he would feel free to over-ride the veto of a member of the JCS or to veto the decision of the entire Staff. He said unless the Defense Secretary had such authority it would "result in a mili-tary dictatorship through the JCS."

Admiral Radford Surveys The Problems-COMMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Army Navy Air Force Journal

In his first public address since becoming Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, admiral Arthur Radford at West Point on Wednesday presented a notable survey of the nation's military problems, plus some sterling recommendations for dealing with them. The address was given before the United States Military Academy's fifth annual Student Conference, the audience including delegates from a great many American colleges and universities as well as Academy personnel. It was most impressively timed, in that it came almost on the eve of the Big Three conference in Bermuda, and a week in advance of the Military Committee meeting which precedes the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Council meeting in Paris, at both of which these same military problems must be discussed. So much was considered when this important policy address was prepared; Admiral Radford could not then have known also that the West Point remarks would be given on could not then have known also that the West Point remarks would be given on the same day that President Eisenhower was to give full support to the statement in which Secretary of State Dulles came to grips with an issue lately raised by Senator McCarthy,

ADMIRAL BADFORD inevitably had written his full support of the basic doctrine that, needing our allies as much as they need the United States, we must conduct ourselves accordingly; that "the smaller nations expect, and are entitled, to exercise their sovereignty; our leadership therefore involves self-restraint if our objectives are to be achieved by consent, rather than through the pressure techniques imposed by the Soviet on her satellites. . . . Let us recognize that true leadership requires balance, patience and restraint. We are so accustomed to getting things done quickly . . . that we sometimes get impatient with organizations and activities like the United Nations, that have to move with glacial slowness because they are so enormous in their scope and significance. . . . In your studies please remember two things. Remember first that our aim is to develop such great strength, by a combination of forces and alliances, that the Communists will recognize the foolhardiness of attacking. Remember, second, that without allies the United States would have no real security."

Adm. Radford

THE SPEECH provided a masterfully summarized review of our world prob-lems and the need to be "calm and resolute" and to make programs for the long-pull, flexible enough to meet day-to-day problems. It cited our difficulty in coping with a "war-by-satellite" technique which "causes the free nations to spend lives and resources without getting at the real cause of the trouble." It noted that while the advent of atomic weapons should make nations "realize that war as a means of implementing foreign policy is more disadvantageous than ever before, realistically we cannot be sure that all nations see it that way."

KOREA has only a truce, not peace, he continued, and "it is possible that United Nations armed forces may have to remain committed there, rather than leave the RoK forces facing the Red menace alone." The Chairman is presently optimistic about Indo-China but "the entire outlook could change if Red China chose to intervene overtly; in that event the war would no longer be localized; the free world could not permit Indo-China to go under the Communist yoke." Nor could the free world permit an extension of Communism elsewhere in Asia—i.e., Japan, Formosa, the Philippines—and "we should take full advantage of the fact that non-Communist Asia has a considerable potential for the development of defensive military forces." With regard to the Middle East, with its obvious difficulties of getting common action with Arab States and Israel, Admiral Radford noted the importance of (a) oil reserves (b) location astride East-West communications, and (c) the fact that here alone on its vast land frontier Russia has no buffer satellite. As to NATO he noted firmly that "we are proud of the commitments we have made, we have lived up to commitments in the past, and will continue to in the future." It was a clear and admirable survey worthy the wide attention it

WITH British, French, and American delegations assembled at Bermuda over the week-end for their exploration of a common-ground on which all three nations the week-end for their exploration of a common-ground on which all three nations can stand, with regard to numerous defense matters the world over, another conference (probably at the foreign ministers' level) of the three western nations plus Russia (marking a real victory for the West) is becoming a probability for West Berlin in late January. On first examination the Kremlin's sudden decision to participate in some sort of Big Four gathering—which it had previously spent several months in discouraging—is as puzzling as the Kremlin's diplomacy usually is. The general presumption was that the decision sprang from belated recognition that France's discordant party-divisions could be effectively exploited on the eve of the Assembly's proposed vote of confidence in Premier Lanlel's European Army program. If that was the main purpose, it was thwarted; M. Laniel got his support-vote, such as it was, and was thus able to pack his baggage and take off with his Foreign Minister, M. Georges Bidault, for the Bermuda conference, which began on Friday. A better surmise may be that this time the Kremlin is acting with a realistic awareness that Russia's self-imposed isolation has its disadvantages. If there is value to Russia in maintaining United Nations memberadvantages. If there is value to Russia in maintaining United Nations membership, in that it provides a rostrum for Russian oratory, the same would seem to be true of participation in a Big Four meeting. To it the Russian delegation may be expected to bring its customary assortment of hammers, sickles, and espe-

THE BERMUDA MEETING, therefore, is especially fortunate. It will permit the three western powers to examine each of the subjects for discussion with as much thoroughness as the conference's five-day life allows, and to attempt adjustments of different views within that reasonably friendly gathering. Again Russia's bad temper has blinded her to the penalty for her obduracy—she will have less opportunity to drive another wedge into the western partnership, for the western powers will already have learned each other's wishes and fears and weaknesses,

News and Gossip For Journal Readers

DEFENSE SEC'Y WILSON, who suggested this week that there are "too many electronic brains" in the Pentagon, has revealed an elementary mathematical pencil and paper approach to computation of military strength. Previously, he has divided into total Air Force strength—now about 945,000—the number of wings, which will be 115 by the end of the fiscal year, or roughly 8000 men per wing, which total is then divided by the number of planes in a wing. This week, the Defense chief, explaining his concept of "support forces," divided the number of divisions into the total strength of the Army, and observed that instead of the 17,500 men in the standard infantry division, "you get 50,000." Apparently, his computation was made on the basis of the equivalent of 30 divisions. Mr. Wilson held that the 33,000 people representing the difference between 17,500 and 50,000 are "support forces in which there can be cuts." To date, he has yet to divide the total strength of the Navy, now about 775,000, by 410 combatant ships.

THE SECRETARY'S ARITHMETIC brings him to the conclusion that since the Army had 10 divisions and 12 regimental combat teams in the spring of '50 with less than 600,000 men in uniform, it should be able to get along with 1,200,000 when its strength is 20 divisions and 18 regimental combat teams. Some suspect that Mr. Wilson has not yet done all his manpower "homework," for among other matters apparently overlooked in such a comparison are the factors that the 10 divisions were virtually all understrength—many by as much as a third of their strength—and that the ratio of divisions overseas to those in the U.S. was then 1:2 instead of 2:1 at present.

ARMY SEC'Y STEVENS and Gen. Ridgway, CofS, told Army commanders meeting in Washington this week of their efforts to impress upon Defense Dept. officials the dangers involved in a manpower cut to a force of 1,281,000. At the same time, they stressed that energetic action must be taken at all echelons to reduce manpower requirements as much as possible. They emphasized that once final decisions are made, all Army commanders must support the determination of civilian superiors with 100 per cent loyalty and do everything possible to keep combat effective ness as high as manpower resources permit. It is not likely, in the light of the President's press conference statement this week supporting Mr. Wilson's plan to cut manpower, that Army leaders will ask permission to present their case directly to the White House. Nonetheless, the fact is that Mr. Stevens is worried that the 10 per cent cut, unless modified upward, will hurt combat effective ness on the basis of present commitments. He undoubtedly will have something to say about ground force strength in a speech at Chicago on Monday. probably reiterating his warning against putting all defense eggs in one basket.

ON THE RESERVE FRONT, the matter of severance pay for Reserve officers eliminated from active duty is still up in the air. The Defense Dept., acting on what it construed to be the intent of Congress as expressed in the Armed Forces Reserve Act, has twice proposed a "Contract Tour" plan to the Budget Bureau. Twice, the BOB has said "no." The Magna Charta of the Reserves, as AFRA has been described, will be deficient until this problem is settled. Congress could become irked if something isn't done about it soon.

ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY IMPACT of the drive to raise the number of voluntary enlistments and boost the re-up rate is pointed up in Asst. SecDef Hannah's disclosure that in a military force of 3,000,000, about 570,000 men could be saved on a basis of four-year service, as compared to two-year tours. He noted that the Army is composed of 60 per cent draftees who serve a maximum of two years.

SOME PENTAGON OBSERVERS are fearful that blunt statements made in the Womble Report will backfire against the interest of the Services. The feeling is that some of the shorthand-type assertions, excellent and essential for use in graphically briefing busy Defense officials, are subject to misunderstanding. One example: the gratuitious remark about the USO's. Public Information experts in the Defense Dept. were given no opportunity to prepare an explanatory press release, as is usually done for such reports. As released, the report does not dramatize the potential savings in retaining "hard core" personnel, a point Dr. Hannah stresses. Another point, which the Asst. SecDef infers in a speech this week but which is not illuminated in the report, as released, is the prospect of reduced draft call needs if more men can be attracted to volunteer and if re-up rates could be raised. Such potential results, with strong appeal in and out of Congress, unfortunately were not driven home.

A THUMPING CAMPAIGN is being conducted to save many military bands, particularly in the Air Force, from deactivation. Many at the Pentagonand some on Capitol Hill-think an Appropriations Committee report may have gone too far in urging a heavy cut in bandsmen. AF Sec'y Talbott has the matter under study-it's considered that important to morale.

INFLUX OF ABOUT 14,000 ROTC GRADS into the Army next year could require an additional force-out of officers in view of reduced strength. Any new elimination would fall exclusively on officers who have volunteered to serve and who have been judged efficinet during the recent forced attrition action. It may be that the Defense Dept., having set a policy which requires the Army to take the ROTC graduates as second lieutenants, will provide funds for a temporary officer overage. Another possibility would be to cut short the tours of earlier ROTC graduates. One thing is certain: Army authorities will do everything they can to prevent involuntary elimination of experienced and qualified officers who want to serve.

UNDER THE NEW Physicians and Dentists Draft Act, the Navy has advanced 175 Reserve dental officers to higher rank and has given 556 others earlier dates of rank in their present grade. In all, those whose status was changed by the new law constitute 61 per cent of the Naval Reserve dental officers on active duty. The rest of the Navy's active Reserve dentists (469) were considered to have grades and dates of rank which are commensurate with their professional experience.

AIRCRAFT COMPLEXITY is pointed up in the fact that the Northrop F-89D, all-weather interceptor, is equal in size and weight to a WWII medium bomber. The fighter is 57'10" wide, 53'10" long and 17'6" high, weighs over 40,000 pounds.

Will Your RETIREMENT INCOME FADE AWAY?

It won't if your current earnings are wisely invested.

Don't let inflation sap the purchasing power of those retirement dollars you are counting on. Through convenient purchases of Mutual Investment Fund shares you can acquire dividend paying securities out of current earnings.

Nearly a million Americans, including many military and naval personnel, have invested over 3 billion dollars in Mutual Investment Funds—and the number grows daily. Learn how a Mutual Investment Fund purchase plan can help you supplement your fixed-dollar retirement income. Just mail this advertisement with your name and address.

hristmas is a Sittle Poll

Soon it will be the night before Christmas. And many an excited little girl will be nestled all snug in her bed, to dream of sleigh bells and a cuddly doll beneath a tree.

Santa Claus is such a jolly fellow that he wouldn't want to miss anyone. But it could happen and that would be very sad indeed.

So again this year, telephone girls in many communities will be helping Santa get around. For weeks they have been spending their spare time dressing dolls for little girls.

Throughout the country thousands of other Bell System men and women are collecting baskets of food, candy, toys and dollars for those less fortunate than themselves.

And remembering their co-workers in the armed services with the letters and holiday packages that are so extra-special when a young fellow is far away from home.

To all of you, from all of us in the telephone business, we send best wishes for a joyous and reverent Christmas.

SANTA'S HELPERS

Some of the dolls from telephone employees in just one city. Rag dolls, fancy dolls, teddy bears and pandas dolls of every kind and shape-to help put joy in many a Christmas stocking.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

LOCAL to serve the community. Nationwide to serve the nation.

DEADLY ACRID FLAMES spurt from a white phosphorus grenade as Corporal Henry W. Roark signals his flame thrower into action for the final assault on an "enemy" pillbox. Corporal Roark, fire team leader of a rifle squad at Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., will see no enemy during this problem, is prepared for the real thing in time of war.

by EDGAR A. GUEST

They are the strength of freedom's wall, The men and women, one and all, Who serve by land and sea and sky That liberty shall never die; Sworn all to keep our country free From every threat of tyranny.

Army, and Navy and Marine!
All that life holds for us they mean.
Those Air Force lads who hasten by
Are valiant guardians of the sky,
And those who stand at lonely posts
Are brave defenders of our coasts.

G. I.'s or Gobs or Leather Necks!
The humblest boy who swabs the decks,
The Wacs and Waves, at work or ease,
For us are freedom's guarantees,
All are our stalwart, steadfast friends.
On them our way of life depends.

Brave youth! Draftee or Volunteer It matters not. When foes appear Who would destroy our glorious land, Behind the wall you build we stand, Assured that freedom, by your worth, Shall never perish from the earth.

WAGING PEACE IS

This is an especial salute for the men and women in the "enlisted ranks" of Uncle Sam's armed forces. Whether serving at home or overseas, these people have elected to put 10, or 20, or 30 years of their lives against the essential job of holding a hard core of trained personnel ready to man the implements of national defense.

As a nation, we live a long cry from that day in April, 1775, when a handful of rugged Colonists lifted their muskets from their mantel-pieces and went to meet the enemy at Concord.

Amazing as this country's ability has been to turn its people and its production swiftly from needs of peace to those of emergency, it is also grimly clear that a man cannot come

Gen. Watson USMA '15 Retires After 42 Years

Maj. Gen. Leroy H. Watson, USA, completed a 42-year Army career at retirement ceremonies at the Presidio of San Francisco, 30 Nov.

A paarde and review of 1,000 Presidio soldiers honored General Watson, whose West Point classmates include President Dwight D. Eisenhower, General of the Army Omar Army Omar Bradley, General James Van Fleet and Lt. Gen. Jo-seph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander. Following graduation from the Military Academy in June, 1915, General Watson saw service in the Southwest with various infantry units prior to World War I. Arriving in France in the summer of 1918 he participated in the Meuse-Argonne offensive and remained in Germany on occupation duty after the war.

Maj. Gen. Watson

During WWII General Watson com-manded the Third Armored Division and 79th Infantry Division in combat in Europe and also served on the staff of 12th Army Group, commanded by Gen-eral Bradley. At the end of the war, he was designated commander of the Nurn-berg Enclave, site of the trials of former Nazi leaders.

On his return to the United States in May, 1948, he assumed command of the Southern Military District of Sixth Army with headquarters at Fort MacArthur, Calif. In 1950 General Watson was assigned to command Fort Lewis. Wash., holding that post until June, 1951, when he was ordered to the Far East Command. He served on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, Far East Command until his return to the United States last month.

Following his retirement, General Wat-son will live at 701 Elm Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. He is the father of Col. Leroy HI. Watson, jr., USAF, on duty at the Pentagon on the staff of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Robert B. Watson, a student at Georgetown University in Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Margaret Malstrom, 2721 Ortega, San Francisco, widow of Lt. Comdr. Howard A. Malstrom, USN; Sister Miriam Joseph of the Sisters of Charity, now teaching in Topeka, Kans., and Antoinette Watson, a Beverly Hills student.

Gen. Lindsay Reports On Sampson AFB

The trainee is given the opportunity of competing among his 60 flight mates for a position as a student officer such as squad leader, flight leader, or squadron commander. His flight competes with the others in training for weekly awards for others in training for weekly awards for excellence in academic standing, sports, drill, marksmanship, field exercises and overall standing. Award pennants are presented weekly at a Saturday all-trainee parade and are carried by the winning flight during the ensuing week.

The Basic Training Program is nine weeks in duration with 432 scheduled hours. Sixty-four hours are devoted to drill and ceremonies; 24 are allocated to weapons and marksmanship; 32 hours to field exercises; 36 hours of practical mathematics; 24 devoted to physical fit-ness; 18 for inspections; 10 for squadron orientation, and 102 are non-training hours. Into "non-training" fall such things as processing, aptitude testing, career counselling and certain administrative requirements.

A total of 120 hours are devoted to subjects such as character guidance, leadership, missions, organization and defense against attack, psychological warfare, military law, first aid, personal hy-giene and intelligence.

Sampson has been a basic training installation for the Air Force only since 12 Nov., 1950. Before that date it had been from its opening in 1942 until 1946, a Navy "boot" training base, and then, from 1946 to 1949, Sampson College, used a portion of the facilities, the state of New York having authorized its academic use due to the heavy flow of veteran students in the colleges of the area.

Sampson lies along 4½ miles of the eastern shore of historic Lake Seneca, 16 miles south of Geneva, N. Y. The reservation occupies over 2800 acres of former Finger Lakes farm and orchard land Built by the Navy in great haste in 1942, its more than 550 buildings provide well over 6,000,000 square feet of floor space, over 6,000,000 square feet of floor space, capable of housing about 20,000 trainees in addition to the permanent party. We value the plant at about 118½ million dollars, which the taxpayer has put into it, but are fully conscious that its replacement value would be much greater. A 5,000 foot black-top landing strip with limited operational facilities will be placed in full commission in the spring of 1954, and will provide more economical use of air transportation in the movement of the trainees to technical schools and for dispatch and receipt of "airevac" medical patients. evac" medical patients.

Pacific Jet Flight Wins 1952 MacKay Trophy

The MacKay trophy for the most meritorious flight of 1952 was awarded this week to the crew of the North American RB-45 jet Tornado for the first non-stop jet flight across the Pacific last year. General Nathan F. Twining, Air Force

General Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, who presented the trophy, praised the award-winning flight as a "milestone in the progress of jet aviation" which resulted in the development of shorter air routes across the Pacific.

The award was accepted by Maj. Louis H. Carrington, 376th Bomb Wing, Barksdale AFB, La., commander of the winning crew. His crewmen, also present at the ceremony, were Maj. Frederick W. Shook, navigator, and Capt. Wallace D. Yancey, pilot. Both are now stationed at Lockborne AFB, Ohio.

The non-stop flight from Elmendorf AFB, Alaska, to Yokota AB, Japan, a distance of 4,082 statute miles, was made in nine hours and 50 minutes.

Mrs. Ridgway Pursues Art-

Too occupied in Paris during the General's term of duty there to paint, Mrs. Ridgway is now devoting one day a week —usually Thursday—to her art, special-izing in Japanese flowers and figures. She took lessons in Japan from a teacher who told her his instructor had made him draw bamboos for ten years. Mrs. Ridg-way said her teacher made her draw the delicate foliage for the first five or six lessons.

Her skill in arranging blossoms was evident to guests who attended the reception given Monday—the first since moving into the Chief of Staff's quarters at Ft. Myer, Va. Visitors were particularly impressed by a tall magnolia branch, fully three feet high which took in a challent

German Toy-Makers Give Gifts For U.S. Orphanages

Gifts For U. S. Orphanages

NURNBERG, GERMANY. More than 10 tons of toys and Christmas decorations of all varieties were donated here recently for American orphans by the German Toy Makers Association.

They were given to the U. S. Army Quartermaster Association for distribution to orphanages in the U. S.—the second year that such a gesture has been made.

The donation ceremonies began at Stein Castle as 25 elementary school children, both German and American, sang Christmas carols in both languages.

Col. Harold P. Hennessy, Nurnberg District CO, introduced Hans Mangold, Chairman of the Toy Makers Association, who, on behalf of 75 manufacturers, presented the toys to General William M. Hoge, USAREUR Commander-in-Chief.

General Hoge said, "The toys exchange will do much toward eliminating future friction between our two nations . . . and will soothe some of the wounds of our past wars."

Col. Webster Anderson, USAREUR Quartermaster, accepted the glifts on behalf of the Quartermaster Association and stated:

"I accept, and wish to express the warm thanks of the children of America for your very generous glifts."

sible number of people under arms at lowest possible dollar cost, but equally in the military virtue of those Armed Forces as exemplified by the professional competency, esprit and training of their career personnel—this is the combat effectiveness which must be achieved at whatever cost. There must be a hard core of expert career personnel capable of rapid expansion in the event of total mobilization.

The committee concludes that in furtherance of cost consciousness there exists positive danger that budgetary considerations will be permitted to transcend the attainment of this combat effectiveness. The Korean emergency proved conclusively the inadvisability of such policies.

(2) FISCAL DECISIONS MUST BE MADE
Y THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR MILITARY EFFECTIVENESS.

BY THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR MILITARY EFFECTIVENESS.

Costs incident to the pay and maintenance of personnel loom large in the national military budget. Such items are easily identifiable and readily present themselves as targets for hasty ill-considered reductions. There has been a tendency for fiscal decisions to be taken without due regard to their impact on personnel and combat effectiveness. Preparedness is measured in numbers of ships, planes, tanks, guns—and people. The committee notes with alarm that many such decisions are made within the military departments based on recommendations of junior civilian advisors and from without the military departments by committees, bureaus, and agencies, none of whom are charged with the military defense of our nation, or capable of evaluating our combat effectiveness. The committee concludes such decisions must be more carefully supervised and examined by senior civilian and military leaders. In the event fiscal decisions affecting personnel are made from without the military departments, some system must be devised to insure the responsible agency accepts full responsibility for the ensuing results.

The committee counsels that a continued

The committee counsels that a continued failure to judiclously apply budgetary reductions affecting personnel will ultimately dissipate the military virtue of our Armed Forces as represented in our career military personnel. It is exceedingly important that responsibility for such an event be sufficiently determined in advance.

a. For itemized problems and recommended actions, see Appendix I.

4. CONCLUSIONS

a. The committee concurs in the appraisal of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that military service has lost much of its attractiveness as a career.

b. Unless the present trend of career personnel leaving the service can be reversed, most serious consequences to the national defense effort will result.

c. Responsibility for the present state of affairs must be shared between the military departments, Congress and many other governmental bureaus and agencies.

d. Corrective measures are entirely within national capabilities but require the support of the President and Congress.

e. Alternatives involving a substantial extension of the compulsory active service deteriorating benefits have hampered the period or a lesser degree of combat effective-ness are unacceptable since they will assured-ity result in inadequate national military preparedness.

5. RECOMMENDATIONS

a. That the recommendations contained in this report and Appendix I be approved for implementation without delay. b. That responsibility for implementing action be assigned as indicated in Appendix

c. That the final report of the committee be approved and forwarded to the Secretary of Defense. That, since the implementation of the detailed recommendations of this report will detailed recommendations of this report win require nation-wide support, upon approval, it be released for publication in its entirety. e. That the committee be continued in an advisory capacity to insure necessary rective action.

The Defense Department manpower

chief, Assistant Secretary John A. Hanchief, Assistant Secretary John A. Har-nah, recommended last year that a plan similar to the Navy's be set up for the Army and Air Force. He said it was the "only feasible" means of providing the other two Services with adequate numhers of junior officers.

Shortly before Secretary Hannah expressed his views, however, Rear Adm. J. F. Bolger, who was then Deputy Chief of Naval Personnel, declared that the future of the Holloway Plan was at stake unless more of the graduates could be induced to accept career commissions.

Named for the present Chief of Naval Personnel, Vice Adm. James L. Holloway, the Plan was designed with the prime purpose of providing the Navy with a large number of career officers. The Naval Academy, because of its limited capacity, is able to furnish only about one-third of the officers needed to operate the Forces as a career, regardless of the strength of any other motives."

The Womble Report is expected to form the basis for the reply Secretary Wilson will make to a long list of inquiries put to him by Chairman Dewey Short (R-Mo.) in a communication regarding Service Attractiveness, the text of which was published in The Journal of 7 Nov.

Representative Short told the Defense Representative Short told the Defense Secretary that his Committee "has noted with increasing concern" adverse developments regarding the conditions of service of military personnel.

Chairman Short said that "among the factors which are reported to have contributed to the present conditions are the tributed to the present conditions are the rising costs of living coupled with a decrease in the so-called fringe benefits of those in the Armed Services."

Pertinent to the Chairman's observation is the assertion in the Womble Re-port that "increases in service pay have neither approximated the increase in the cost of living nor increases afforded organized labor, or even increases afforded civilian public servants. At the same time," continues the Womble Report, "there has been an alarming derease in compensatory benefits."

Long pending before Mr. Short's committee is a bill, sponsored by Representa-tive James Van Zandt (R-Pa.), which would tie military pay to the Cost-of-Living Index and which would mean at least an 8 per cent hike in Service pay.

A Womble Committee staff aide, explaining the report to Pentagon reporters, stressed this week that the request for a pay increase is only one of many recommendations made to raise the prestige and rewards of military service —and is not necessarily the major fac-tor contributing to the loss of skilled personnel from the "hard core," made up of noncommissioned officers, Regular officers and career Reserve officers.

The committee set to work last April. on orders from Secretary Wilson, relayed through Dr. Hannah, to answer this wide-ranging problem:

"Why has military service lost much of its attractiveness as a lifetime career for inherently capable personnel and what corrective measures are necessary?"

necessary?"

The committee went from A (Academy) to Z (Zone of Interior) in its inquiry.

On the matter of Academies, the Womble Report recommends a pay increase for cadets and midshipmen. This will have the support of the Defense De-partment, as previously reported in THE JOURNAL, and will have White House approval.

With regard to the ZI, the report explains that the necessity to deploy a major portion of the Armed Forces overseas has resulted in short tours of duty in the United States and frequent separations. rations of families. Steps should be taken, the report states, to give more stability to ZI assignments.

During the seven months that the report was in preparation, action has been taken by the individual Services, where possible, to answer specific problems-for example, that of assignment stability.

In this regard, the Army has recently announced that all servicemen returning from overseas now are to be guaranteed a minimum of 18 months' service in the ZI. Last week, the Army said further that top three-graders with 20 years' service or more who have served overseas since 1 Jan. 1950 will not be obliged to leave the U. S. again during their military service.

The report makes numerous recommendations for legislation, in addition to the pay boost. Equitable benefits for Regulars and Reservists are urged. Similarly, legislation to equalize survivor benefits is strongly endorsed.

The Committee says that reductions in military benefits by means of legisla-tive riders to appropriations bills, a com-mon procedure during recent sessions of Congress, should be opposed.

The Womble Report calls for restoration of the 75 per cent disability pay instead of the use of VA criteria.

It says that flight pay should be computed on a percentage of base pay and notes that the Air Force is preparing legislation to this end.

The report maintains that retirement benefits should be improved and recommends that retired pay be exempt from income tax.

Explaining that Service requirements demand frequent transfers, the Committee calls for a "dislocation allowance," and reveals that the Navy Department is preparing such legislation.

On dependent care, the report hits at the adequacy of present medical services for families and says benefits between Regular and Reserve personnel should be equalized.

The report also goes into the matters of dependent education and family housing and explains how losses have adversely affected morale.

In a section certain to stir considerable ontroversy, the Womble Committee states that "no fiscal policy should be established without full evaluation of its effect on morale and effectiveness of military personnel."

The report makes the statement that

Asst. SecDef Hannah Warns of Manpower Shortage, Tells Potential "Career" Savings

A comprehensive report on military manpower prospects and a discussion of the importance of attracting and retainthe importance of attracting and retaining volunteers in the Armed Forces were made in a speech delivered on 2 Dec.—the day before release of the Womble Report—by Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah.

His remarks were addressed to the Iowa Farm Bureau convention at Des Moines. With characteristic analytical skill, the Michigan State College president described the problems confronting the nation in maintaining an unprecedented.

scribed the problems confronting the nation in maintaining an unprecedented peacetime military strength at a time when relatively small numbers of young men are becoming of draft age.

With this background, Dr. Hannah emphasizes the importance of obtaining as many voluntary enlistments and reenlistments as possible.

Here are the pertinent excernts from ments as possible.

Here are the pertinent excerpts from his address on these matters:

It comes as a surprise to most Americans to learn that we do not have an unlimited supply of manpower: It is almost as surprising as the discovery we made not many years ago that our supply of iron ore is not inexhaustible, and a few years earlier that our timber resources were almost used up.

THE COLD TRUTH of the matter is that we have been putting young men ino uniform much faster than the males in our population turn 18½ years of age. The gradual lowering of the manpower pool has been going on for some time, and if inductions continue at the same rate, and we do not gain in recruitment and re-enlistment, then the bottom of the pool may be reached sometime within the next two or three years. Thereafter, the size of our armed forces will be determined, not completely by what the defense planners consider essential to the defense of our country, but by the number of qualified young men who can be made available. THE COLD TRUTH of the matter is that quanted young men who can be made available.

The situation today is another unhappy legacy of the depression years, when smaller families were the rule. The children of those marriages of the 1930's are just coming of military age, and there are simply not erough of them to give us complete freedom in military planning. The situation will be no better until about 1960, when the rising birthrates of the early war years begin to be reflected in military manpower statistics. So for the next six years, at least, we will have to put up with a serious shortage of manpower.

Must Continue Draft

Must Continue Draft

Must Continue Draft

That is why the Selective Service Act will have to be continued in effect, much as everyone would like to dispense with the draft; that is why I believe we cannot consider instituting a kind of universal military training, as was contemplated and hoped a few years ago. That is why every young man who is qualified mentally and physically must look forward to at least two years of military service for many years to come. And this is the reason why the American people must accept a continuation of the draft as the only alternative to a weakened system of national security, an alternative so dangerous it cannot be accepted.

I am sure that all of you have confronted a shortage of manpower on your farms or other businesses at one time or another. The situation in military manpower has about the same elements, except that it is vastly bigger.

Let me illustrate: Suppose you are in a

same elements, taken's bigger.

Let me illustrate: Suppose you are in a period of manpower shortage, and know that you will not be able to increase the overall number of hands you have on your farm.

Improve Efficiency

Improve Efficiency
About the first thing you would do would be to try to improve the efficiency of your present force—to get more accomplished with the same number of man-hours. You might do as you have done before, and get more machinery to do the work. You might cut out some unessential things you have been doing; you might have to change the pattern of your farming operations to some extent. I am certain you would try to improve the efficiency of your force under the pressure of necessity.

That is exactly what is being done now in the millitary services. In my office, there is one whole division devoted to matters of manpower utilization. It works constantly to get higher efficiency out of the peop'e on the job, both in and out of uniform; if tries to eliminate unnecessary jobs; it seeks to put everyone to work at the job for which is best fitted. There is a never-ending effort to improve the efficiency of manpower utilization, and with the hearty cooperation of the military services and our civilian supervisors, a great deal is being accomplished.

Our major objective, of course, is to gain plished. Our major objective, of course, is to gain combat efficiency at less or no greater cost than before. Next, in managing your available manpower, you would try to hold on to your experienced hands, the men upon whom you can depend because they know their jobs well, and have been with you long enough to understand you and how you want things done.

This, too, the military services are trying to do, but the results have been discouraging to date. They call this body of experienced career people the "hard core" of the services, and it is an apt phrase. They are the people who have been around a long time, who know how to do their jobs, and would form a solid base for expansion of the military services in the event of a great national emergency requiring full mobilization.

Service Losing Attractiveness

Linfortunately for the country, the military

Unfortunately for the country, the military service is losing its attractiveness as a career, and as a result, the Army, the Navy, the Air Force, and the Marines all are losing experienced career people in numbers so great as to be disturbing.

MANY THINGS ARE TO BLAME; recently we made a study to determine just where the fault lies, and we find that the Depart-ment of Defense, the military services, the Congress, and the American people must share the responsibility. This, too, you should understand, because it has tremen-dous long-range implications.

Urges Pay Raise

Urges Pay Raise

For one thing, the pay in the military services has not kept pace with the rising cost of living. Industry offers great competition; the pay is much higher, and there is a great demand for men with the skills tought by the services. I am sure you can all appreciate what a vigorous competitor for manpower civilian industry can be in a time of labor shortages.

The survey my office made shows further that there has been a continual nibbling away at the benefits service personnel have traditionally enjoyed as compensation for away at the benefits service personnel have traditionally enjoyed as compensation for some of the things they lose by defending their country in uniform instead of being civilians—things such as commissary privileges and medical care for dependents. Soldiers, sallors, and airmen alike complain about lack of housing for their families and lack of adequate facilities for the education of their children. of their children.

One of the most potent factors of all is the public attitude towards people in uniform. We Americans have never been overly fend of the military; we have always had much of the attitude expressed by Rudyard Kipling in his poem "Tommy." You remember to the state of the st being in his poem "Tommy." You remember how it goes:

"You talk of better food for us, an' schools, an' fires, an' all; We'll wait for extra rations, if you'll treat us rational. . . . For it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that, an' 'Chuck him out, the brute!' But it's 'Savior of 'is country' when the guns begin to shoot."

Patronizing Attitude

Patronizing Attitude

People in uniform are quick to detect the patronizing attitude on the part of the civilian, or any attempt to exploit them because of their special position. They resent bitterly slanderous attacks on military leaders, and on the services. They recognize that they are not perfect, but they feel that their profession is an honorable one—as indeed it is—and they are entitled to a certain degree of respect—as indeed they are.

My experience in intimate association with the military has been a brief one, but within a few short months I have come to feel a profound respect for the men who hold the military fortunes of this nation—indeed of the whole free world—within their hands. They are intelligent, devoted to their country, faithful to their duty, in a sense dedicated persons who are willing to take part of their compensation in the satisfaction of performing the tasks that must be done if our country is to continue to live.

On their behalf, I ask you as American citizens to give to them the respect and honor that is their due, and treat them with consideration when they ask for some of the privileges and the pay to which they feel they are entitled in equity and justice.

Serious Problem

Serious Problem

UNLESS THE PROPORTION of career people in the military services can be increased sharply, we will have a serious problem on our hands if and when we are called upon for an all-out effort in defense of our country. These are the professionals around which the traditional citizens' army mustrally in time of danger; they are precious to our military services, and to our safety. I am sure that if you were managing a large labor force in a time of shortage, you would prefer, in making replacements, to pick your own men, rather than accept those sent to you by some outside agency. You would prefer to hire a man who would agree to stay with you for a year, rather than two men serving six months each. You know that you would lose too much time training two men, and that actually because of the time lost in training, you would get more work out of the one man for a long period than from the two for a shorter period each. even though the total man-hours were the

it is with the military services; they would much prefer enlisting men for three-year and four-year periods to drafting them for two-year periods of duty. There are a number of reasons for this attitude. For one, because of the training overlap, the four-year enlistee is more tha equivalent of two two-year inductees.

Savings Possible

Savings Possible

These figures take on great significance when it is realized that to maintain an active force of 1,000,000 trained men on a two-year term of service would require a total strength of 1,333,000 while the same force of four-year enlistees would require a strength of only 1,143,000, a difference of 190,000 men. In a total force of 3,000,000 men, the difference would be 570,000, enough to man and support at least nine (9) infantry divisions. Besides, a larger training and processing establishment would be required to handle the larger recruit load under the induction system. As you can see, the dollar saving would be tremendous.

Look at the problem from another angle. Sixty per cent of the present strength of the Army is composed of Selective Service inductees serving a maximum of 24 months. Of this period, four months are devoted to basic training, two months are charged off to leave time. This leaves only sixteen months of useful service for a man who has been trained to grasp only the fundamentals of a soldier.

trained to grasp only the fundamentals of a soldier.

Highly complex and technical skilled training to provide the many military specialists required in this age of complicated weapons and equipment requires as much as twelve months of additional training in the case of some individuals. In cases of these men, they could give only four months of effective service out of the twenty-four they were in uniform. The four-year enlistee, on the other hand, would give as many as 26 months of effective service in some cases with the same amount of time and money devoted to his training.

$3.100 for $100

$3,100 for $100

$3,100 for $100

The expenditure by the armed services to promote voluntary recruitment represents a highly profitable investment, considering that the cost of the initial training of a recruit is estimated at $3,200, whether he serves for two, three, or four years. Since one four-year enlistee provides more than the same number of effective man-months as two two-year inductees, then each enlistee represents a saving of at least $3,200 in training costs alone.

Last year, the Department of Defense recruiting effort cost approximately $100 per recruit, which subtracted from the $3,200 potential saving represented a return of $3,100 on each $100 invested.

Decision Denies Job Pay To Fleet Adm. Nimitz

5 December 1953

The Assistant Comptroller General of the United States has ruled that Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, USN, may not take part time employment as a technical adviser with a company fur-nishing naval supplies or war materials nishing havai supplies or war materials to the Government.

In answer to a letter from Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air James H. Smith, jr., Assistant Comptroller General Frank H. Weitzel ruled that an act of 1896, as amended in 1935, makes it impossible for Admiral Nimitz to take such a job "so long as he remains on the ac-tive list of the Navy" and receives his retired pay.

All five-star officers, regardless of their branch of Service, remain on the active list for life. However, the law quoted in Admiral Nimitz' case applies only to Navy and Marine Corps officers.

The text of the decision, contained in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Robert

Anderson, follows:

The Honorable
The Secretary of the Navy

My Dear Mr. Secretary:

The Honorable
The Secretary of the Navy
My Dear Mr. Secretary:

Reference is made to letter of 23 Oct. 1953, from the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air requesting decision with respect to the application of the act of 10 June 1896 as amended. 34 U.S.C. 883, in the case of a fleet admiral "on the active list of the Navy but not employed on active duty" in the event such officer accepts employment as a technical adviser on a part-time basis with a company furnishing naval supplies or war materials to the Government. It is stated that the officer would be employed in a technical capacity only, and that he would not be engaged in selling, contracting for the sale, or negotiating for the sale of naval supplies or war materials to the Government.

The submission invites attention to the provisions of the act of 23 Mar. 1946, 60 Stat. 59, reading as follows:

"That the President is hereby authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint to the permanent grade of General of the Army any individual who shall have served in such grade after 14 Dec. 1944, and before 14 Aug. 1945, and to appoint to the permanent grade of Fleet Admiral of the United States Navy any individual who shall have served in such grade after 14 Dec. 1944, and before 14 Dec. 1945. The officers appointed under the provisions of this section shall take rank in the manner provided in the Act of 14 Dec. 1944 (Public Law 482, Seventy-eighth Congress), and shall receive the pay and allowances prescribed by section 4 of such act. Any officer on the active list, or any retired officer, who is appointed under the provisions of this section and who has been or may hereafter be retired or relieved from active duty, shall be entitled to have his name placed on the retired list with the highest grade or rank held by him on the active list or while on active duty, and shall be entitled to receive while on active duty, and shall be contiled to receive while on active duty, and shall be entitled to receive while on active duty."

the same pay and allowances while on the retired list as officers appointed under this section are entitled to receive while on active duty."

34 U.S.C. 883, provides as follows:

"After 22 July 1935 no payment shall be made from appropriations made by Congress to any officer in the Navy or Marine Corps on the active list while such officer is employed, after 30 June 1897 by any person or company furnishing naval supplies or war materials to the Government, and such employment is made unlawful after said date: Provided, That no payment shall be made from appropriations made by Congress to any retired officer in the Navy or Marine Corps who for himself or for others is engaged in the selling of, contracting for the sale of, or negotiating for the sale of, to the Navy or the Navy Department, any naval supplies or war material." [Emphasis supplied.]

The prohibition in 34 U.S.C. 883 is absolute with respect to any officer of the Navy "on the active list." Since the fleet admiral is on the active list. "Since the fleet admiral is on the active list the fact that he may not be on active duty is not material. Neither is it material that the fleet admiral "would not for himself or for others be engaged in selling," etc., to the Government, as stated in the submission, because the inhibition respecting active list officers is against their employment by any person or company furnishing supplies, etc., to the Government. It follows that so long as he remains on the active list of the Navy the fleet admiral may not be paid any pay and allowances by the Government while employed by a company furnishing naval supplies or war materials to the Government while employed by a company furnishing naval supplies or war materials to the Government.

Sincerely yours,

FRANK H. WBITZEL, Assistant Comptroller General of the United States.

"So, we think you ladies are entitled to VIF treatment."

The nearly-100 ladies attending heard Colonel Tully explain that visiting dignitaries customarily are given a briefing on the scope and mission of the Center. He then briefly sketched the operation of the Center for the ladies, emphasizing that in addition to "showing you what we're doing here." It would better enable them to understand their husbands' work in this important activity. Colonel Tully noted the Ladies' Club is important as a link between the military establishment and newcomers, providing a base through which families of officers newly-assigned here can become acquainted and oriented to their strange surroundings.

"It is no surprise then," he continued, "that we attach such importance to the Ladies' Club. We think you're important and we want you to know we'd like to have you on our team, because that's the only way our team will be a success."

For the future, the Colonel told the gathering of officers' wives, they can anticipate at least two formal affairs, "which are part of the tradition of the service."

"It is a tradition I want to revive," the installation Commander said. "We're going to try to have one formal occasion before Christmas and we hope to have another in connection with the anniversary of the Signal Corps in March."

Table decorations for the luncheon carried out a Thanksgiving theme, with fall flowers and a beautiful cornucopia of fruit serving as a centerpiece.

The committee in charge of the meeting, headed by Mrs. W. A. Speir, included Mrs. E. L. Orstad, Mrs. A. J. Urspring, Mrs. N. E. Boettcher, Mrs. P. J. Pavle, Mrs. G. A. Van Sant, Mrs. R. M. Tarr, Mrs. R. N. Lee, Mrs. N. Y. Hardman, Mrs. E. O. White, and Mrs. F. B. Hancock.

U.S. Coast Guard

Secretary of The Treasury— George M.
Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Adm. Merlin O'Neill

THE Coast Guard has delegated to district commanders and commanding officers of the Academy, Groton Training Station, Coast Guard Yard and Cape May Receiving Station responsibility for convening of sub-boards for the officer pro motion examinations.

Full details are contained in Personne Memorandum No. 13-53 now in the pro cess of distribution.

The Coast Guard said that all unit were to have submitted to the Commandant a list of officers attached scheduled for examinations on 11 Jan. 1954. Some units did not include the name of the examination to be taken by each officer.

Since this information is necessary for the forwarding of examinations, each reporting unit should advise the Command ant (PTP) immediately of the specific examination required for each officer, un less this was included in the initial noti fication.

and will have made a start at the many compromises and mutual encouragements which flow from every satisfactory discussion of this nature. In the circumstances (which again the Kremlin apparently failed to measure with any accuracy) the three western powers are given ample time to consider each other's views on all matters related not only to the European Army but to France's wearying activities in Indo-China, where western unanimity is just as important.

HENCE, HO CHI-MINH's vague hint of a possible armistice in Indo-China, as mysteriously presented in a Swedish newspaper, was timed with equal clumsiness. If it had come a few days earlier, it might conceivably have affected the French assembly more than did the Kremlin's sudden conversion. For the French can be cynical without effort over the reality of a Russian threat; they have taken severe punishment in Indo-China, and are weary of it, and might react hopefully to even a mirage of an armistice. But Ho Chi-minh on this occasion spoke too late to influence the Assembly vote on confidence in M. Laniel's projects. And he spoke to influence the Assembly vote on confidence in M. Laniel's projects. And he spoke too early to startle France on the eve of a Big Four gathering which is weeks away. On the contrary, he spoke just in time to let the Bermuda conference examine the evidence and perhaps reach a three-party conclusion which would be invaluable to the western world and no help at all to the Red partnership. Sometimes the western alliance gets a break.

KOREAN ATROCITIES finally landed squarely in the United Nations General Assembly this week, when Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., opened the debate on the issue he posted a month ago. The American delegate bluntly introduced a resolution proposing that the Assembly express its "grave concern," followed by condemnation, over information that Chinese and North Korean Reds employed "in-human practices" against United Nations soldiers and against Korean civilians. It is high time. The United States has too long been on the receiving end of the faked charges invented by Communist chiefs, This time Mr. Lodge has taken over the offensive. He has provided charges of Red inhumanity, documented by written reports and photographic evidence of mass-murders committed by Chinese Red personnel with full knowledge of Russian planning personnel. The resolution is supported by Great Britain, France, Australia and Turkey, nullifying at the outset the hasty assertion of the Red Polish delegate that the Lodge resolution was "American propaganda." The photographs, widely published, are a telling factor in the American presentation.

Retiring VP of Bell Labs To Be Dep. Asst. Sec. Def.

Appointment of William H. Martin as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Applications Engineering), effective 1 Jan., 1954, is announced by Assistant Secretary Frank D. Newbury.

Mr. Martin will retire at the end of this year as vice president of Bell Telephone Laboratories in charge of telephone communications apparatus development and design engineering to accept the Depart-ment of Defense position.

Mr. Martin has been engaged in tele-phone research and development since he joined AT&T in 1911, after receiving a bachelor of arts degree from Johns Hop-kins University and a bachelor of science degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He transferred to Bell Laboratories in 1934 when the development and research department of AT&T was consolidated in the laboratories, and held a number of executive positions in transmission development, switching research, station apparatus development prior to his election as Vice velopment prior to his election as Vice President in 1949.

New Radar Camera System

A new five unit radar camera system with interchangeable parts has been developed jointly by the Bolsey Corporation of America and the Air Force's Air Research and Development Command.

The new system, which replaces the obsolete 0-15 system, is designed to photograph radar scopes images in various modes of operation on 35mm picture film.

The interchangeability of parts and units simplifies the problem of maintenance and repair and stocking the parts for the cameras. This simplification is particularly advantageous be cause of the short time involved in making the changes to meet the situation.

Director of Maintenance Named For Defense Dept.

Appointment of Rudolph Weitz, 52, Des Moines, Iowa, contractor, as Di-rector of Maintenance, is announced by Franklin G. Floete, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Properties and Installa-

Mr. Weitz reports officially in his new position on 4 Jan., but will come to Washington 7 Dec. to begin his duties informally.

He is President of the Weitz Company, Des Moines contractors; is Chairman of the Board of Grinnell College; Vice President of the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce; a bank director and a director of Employes Mutual Casualty Co. He is a graduate of Grinnell and the

Shift Marine Colonels

Three veteran Marine colonels assumed new duties at the Marine Corps Air Sta-tion, Cherry Point, N. C., recently in a four-way change of command involving four-way change of command involving the commanding officers of two air groups and the inspector of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing. Col. Ben Z. Redfield, formerly Com-manding Officer of Marine Aircraft Group-35, has been transferred to Head-quarters Squad. 2 or Wing inspector.

quarters Squad.-2 as Wing inspector. He succeeds Lt. Col. Robert J. Hoey, who now becomes assistant Wing In-spector. The change of billets was efspector. The change of billets was effected to comply with the table of organization of the Second Wing, which calls for a full colonel as inspector.

Col. Arthur H. Weinberger, former Commanding Officer of Marine Air Control Group-1, assumes command of Aircraft Group-35 to replace Colonel Redfield.

Col. Roy L. Kline, formerly of Head-quarters Squadron-2, takes command of Marine Air Control Group-1, replacing Col. Weinberger.

Pentagon Will Gamble On '55 Korea Cutback

tage of a full complement of so-called supporting forces.

Consequently, Generals Hull and Taylor will be given—for the immediate future anyway—their full quota of replacements. This will be true also for the two Marine Corps divisions in the Far East.

The present deployment of U. S. ground forces shows that the Army and Marine Corps have 15 of their 23 combat divisions overseas, of which the Army has eight in the Far East and five in Europe, with the Marine Corps' famed global mobility somewhat hampered at

In this remark, he was reiterating a statement by President Eisenhower that U. S. strength in Europe will not be reduced. More specifically, Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens said at a recent press conference that the strength of the Seventh Army in Europe would not be Seventh Army in Europe would not be diminished.

Thus no large manpower savings will be possible in Europe, although it is cer-tainly conceivable that commanders there may find themselves confronted with "under shipments" from time to

Such under shipments would not be entirely new, since during the past months there has been a loss in total strength of U. S. forces in Europe numbering into the thousands from failure to replace "support troops" rotating to

This was necessary as the Army strived to meet its 30 June 1954 objec-tive of 1,423,000 men, about 80,000 above

The reduction in the Army of roughly 220,000 men from present strength to fiscal '55 year-end must come, if the state ments about maintenance of strength in Europe hold true on a numerical "strength" basis as well as on a firepower "strength" computation, from the ZI for the present and aventure.

on a firepower "strength" computation, from the ZI for the present and eventually from the Far East.

The cuts in the U. S., no matter how drastically "supporting forces" can be pared, ultimately are related directly to overseas requirements, Prior to outbreak of hostilities in Korea, the U. S. had four divisions in the Far East, all of them at less than full combat strength.

It could very well be that sometime during fiscal '55, the Defense Department and the National Security Council will be able to conclude that six or even four "combat ready" divisions might be sufficient in the Far East, Some officials counting on it.

Unless this long-range bet comes through, the Armed Forces are going to be in a tough spot manpower-wise about next September when replacements will not be available commensurate with present global commitments, highlighted by the needs of the Far East.

HOW IT'S DONE

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, with typical forthrightness, this week disclosed how tentative man-power objectives were formulated.

'Mr. Secretary, whose decision was it to ask the Army to reduce its man-power from end of fiscal year '54 to end of fiscal '55 by exactly 10 per a reporter asked at a press conference.

The answer: "Oh, that is a nice round number to set for a target."

Mr. Wilson emphasized that a final decision had not yet been made. Asked what was Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens' reaction to the pros-pective cut, he said: "He certainly thinks it is a tough assignment."

Ad-miral Erdmann, who assumed his new post on 24 Nov., will supervise logistics and administration in the Southern command. He formerly was Commander of Carrier Division 14. Admiral Ring will become Commander of Carrier Division One in the Pacific.

Strong Capitol Opposition Develops Against Threatened Marine Corps Cuts

Defense Department plans to reduce Defense Department plans to reduce Marine Corps manpower will run into strong opposition on Capitol Hill when Congress reconvenes next month.

Marine Corps supporters in Congress indicated to THE JOURNAL this week that they will fight to retain the Corps at a strength of at least 230,000.

strength of at least 230,000.

strength of at least 230,000.

Among those immediately challenging the planned cut was Senator Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.). He said, "It looks to me as if this is another attempt, as was the case prior to Korea, to strangle the Corps by holding out on appropriations. The law provides for full combat wings

The law provides for full combat wings and divisions."

The cut in Marine strength, as described by Assistant Secretary of Defense John A. Hannah, would trim 23,000 men from the Corps between July 1954 and July 1955, giving it an end strength of 207,000 for the next fiscal year.

However, the rub in effecting the cut for the Marines is that they, unlike the other military services, have a minimum force level which is prescribed by law. Legislation passed by the second ses-sion of the 81st Congress establishes the sion of the 81st Congress establishes the minimum Marine Corps strength at "not less than three combat divisions and three air wings, and such other land, combat, aviation and other services as may be organic therein." This was what Senator Mansfield had reference to when mentioned "full combat wings and

Hard Pressed

Planning in previous fiscal years indi-cates that the Corps would be hard pressed to find enough men to operate these combat forces if the Defense De-partment's suggested manpower cut is adopted.

In the past, Marine officials have said it takes approximately 135,000 men alone to keep the Corps' three divisions and three wings at combat strength. This means that about 65 per cent of the total Corps strength in fiscal '55 would go into Corps strength in fiscal 35 would go into its combat arm and less than 72,000 men would be available to take care of training, support and security forces.

The only alternative appears to be skeletonization of some combat units, since the Corps has long operated with what it considers a minimum—certainly warry large to the combat training training the combat training training the combat training a very low percentage—of men in its sup-port forces. This, however, would seem to be contrary to the minimum force law.

Marines Silent

Although Marine officials are silent about the suggested cut, past records show that the reduction would be difficult to attain without some loss in com-bat efficiency.

In 1952, when the Corps was manned by a force of 204,000 (only three thousand less than Secretary Hannah's proposal), the then Commandant, Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, said the total strength would support two and one-third divisions and squadrons of aviations. This is twothirds of a division and six tactical squad-rons less than the minimum strength now provided by law, and chances appear slim for the Corps to squeeze that many combat units out of the extra three thousand men.

Another Obstacle

Another imposing obstacle which faces the Corps in the event of a large cutback in personnel is the fact that almost 50 cent of its combat personnel are in Far East (two divisions and one air wing). This, of course, adds to support forces requirements and makes skeleton-ization of state-side combat units difficult to visualize if replacements are to be readily available for the combat troops.

When Congress passed the law setting up a minimum force for the Marines, the Corps asked for an increase in strength to 236,126. At that time it had approximately 62.2 per cent of its total personnel serving in combat units.

When the Corps drops to 230,000 at the end of the current fiscal year the Defense Department may find that it has gone as far as it can in the direction of manpower savings for that service. At least Capitol Hill supporters believe this to be true if the minimum force law is to be respected.

Hundreds Make Choice Under Benefits Law

Defense officials said late this week that hundreds of retired military per-sonnel already have made their elections for survivor benefit annuities under provisions of the Uniformed Services Co tingency Act of 1953.

This legislation permits persons in re tired status to have part of their part deducted in order to establish benefit for their survivors.

for their survivors.

Those now on the retired list—said to number about 200,000 in all the Uniformed Services—have until 30 April 1954 to make their election as to whether or not they want to participate in the plan, and, if so, under which of four plan, and, if so, available options.

The Services have sent information on this matter to all retired enlisted men, warrant officers and officers.

Meantime, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps in the Defense Depar-ment, and the Coast Guard, Public Health Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey, also covered, are preparing regu-lations for elections by those on active
